Absolut genial!Von Barbara EissingWenn jemand noch nicht erfahren hat das Gott auch heute noch Wunder tut und jeden Menschen unbeschreiblich liebt, auch wenn man sich wertlos fhlt.....hier ist DAS Buch.So offen und ehrlich, inspirierend und anrhrend.Vor allen Dingen ermutigend.Wie oft stellen wir Gott in Frage, hier ist die Antwort.Eine echte Godstory!! Absolut empfehlenswert. Lsst sich super lesen. Schreit nach mehr....:o)

Kurzbeschreibung In June 2011 a mission team co-led by Dwight and Emma Saunders (a dad and daughter) from the US was serving at an orphanage in Africa. Moving through the orphanage that day, Emma found, in the darkened corner, an emaciated and dying baby girl. Struggling for life, her big brown eyes seemed to be pleading, "Please! Will you help me?" Emma ran to her dad, Dwight, calling, "Daddy! Daddy! Come quick! This baby! She's dying! We have to do something!" Following Emma to the darkened corner of the room, he was stunned at what he found, words inadequate to describe. Emaciated. Mere skin draped over her protruding bones. Her sweet head much larger than her boney exposed limbs. He gasped. Dying is the only word that really could describe her. And at that divinely God-orchestrated moment, Almighty God broke his heart for her. One baby girl, but a picture perfect representative of the millions and millions of orphans globally needing someone to desperately care about them. Emma and Dwight learned that day that this baby girl was actually just over a year old and she weighed barely six pounds. She was truly dying!
