KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Courtesy of Teens Read TooVon TeensReadTooGo over SAT vocabulary or party it up in Miami? Danielle Hollis is faced with a very tough decision for what to do for spring break.However, with the invite from her older sister and two very persuasive friends, Danielle finds herself in an airport, with the thought that maybe her bags had the right idea not coming to Miami. Of course, the loss of her bags is another story, planned out by a few conspirators who wanted to prevent the SAT book from becoming a beach read. Cooper St. John has finally figured out, after a million dates and girlfriends, that he wants a girl interested in his personality and not his wallet. Accompanied by his two best friends, Ethan and Damien, Cooper knows that this spring break is his chance to break away from the life he has been known for. Mindy feels that this break is her perfect chance to accomplish her current goal - becoming popular. After a few girls in school accepted her invitation to go to Miami, Mindy thinks she has finally grasped the highest rung on the social ladder. But the one thing she should expect is that popular girls aren't so nice. Mindy better have some thick skin. In true seasonal fashion, from Secret Santas to Cupid's arrow to now spring when love is in the air, Sabrina James once again takes a group of teens and creates a hilarious and romantic novel. SPRING FLING includes a switch of identities, a bet that two people might regret, a date that ends in doing the dishes, and a Miss Spring Break competition. Also cat fights, backstabbing, mixed signals, and romance in every corner. This story is adorable, hilarious, and chalk-full of love. Smiles will form by the end of the novel, for both the characters and the reader. Reviewed by: Randstostipher "tallnankyrn" Nguyen
