

[FREE] Sunglasses and Reindeer: A Cycle Journey to the Edge of Europe (English Edition)

Sunglasses and Reindeer: A Cycle Journey to the Edge of Europe (English Edition)

Von Bram Reusen

Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks*

 Download

 Read Online

Produktinformation -Verkaufsrang: #1521072 in eBooksVerffentlicht am: 2015-04-01Erscheinungsdatum: 2015-04-01File Name: B00UW6QJE8 | File size: 41.Mb

Von Bram Reusen : Sunglasses and Reindeer: A Cycle Journey to the Edge of Europe (English Edition) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Sunglasses and Reindeer: A Cycle Journey to the Edge of Europe (English Edition):

KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Great read about what seems to have been a fantastic journeyVon Blue ArmyCycling more than 6.000 miles is an extraordinary accomplishment that gets my utmost respect.The way this journey was described in the book did excite me from the beginning till the end. It is easy, yet very well written. The daily challenges with the weather, roads, food, but also the small and big victories when achieving set goals, gave me the feeling of really being part of this journey. I am sure, very soon, I will read the book once again.0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. It was fun reading about your cycle adventure and it felt like being with you on the roadVon HansTravelbooks are allways great to read and this particular book gives also more information about the way of traveling and the destinations.In this book I realy found what I am looking for in a travelbook. Thanks.

KurzbeschreibungIn the spring of 2013, Bram Reusen jumped on a bicycle and set off on what would become a three-month, 6,200-mile journey from his home in Belgium to the North Cape, Norway, and back, taking in nine countries on the way. This book is an account of a bicycle trip that started in the fields of Flanders, ran along the Dutch coastline, went across Germany and Denmark, and continued through the vast forests of Sweden and the barren landscapes of the Arctic. After reaching the North Cape, the northern edge of Europe, the road led south again, past the epic Norwegian fjords and across rural England.How do you describe a journey like that? Do you start by explaining what it was like to spend day after day in the saddle? Or do you say something about the Arctic? Or talk about crossing the North Sea on a cargo ship? Or maybe about the fabulous natural scenery in Scandinavia?In 'Sunglasses and Reindeer', Bram covers all those questions and many more. This engaging true story includes his experiences on the road, preparations, cycling tips, thoughts and philosophies, hardships, moments of sheer joy, local history, and lively descriptions of towns and landscapes.KurzbeschreibungIn the spring of 2013, Bram Reusen jumped on a bicycle and set off on what would become a three-month, 6,200-mile journey from his home in Belgium to the North Cape, Norway, and back, taking in nine countries on the way. This book is an account of a bicycle trip that started in the fields of Flanders, ran along the Dutch coastline, went across Germany and Denmark, and continued through the vast forests of Sweden and the barren landscapes of the Arctic. After reaching the North Cape, the northern edge of Europe, the road led south again, past the epic Norwegian fjords and across rural England.How do you describe a journey like that? Do you start by explaining what it was like to spend day after day in the saddle? Or do you say something about the Arctic? Or talk about crossing the North Sea on a cargo ship? Or maybe about the fabulous natural scenery in Scandinavia?In 'Sunglasses and Reindeer', Bram covers all those questions and many more. This engaging true story includes his experiences on the road, preparations, cycling tips, thoughts and philosophies, hardships, moments of sheer joy, local history, and lively descriptions of towns and landscapes.ber den Autor und weitere MitwirkendeBram Reusen is a freelance writer, translator and travel photographer. He was born and grew up in a small town in northern Belgium and currently lives in a small town in Vermont, northern USA. He likes to try different travel styles and, since he started wandering the globe in 2010, he has backpacked across Australia, cycled from Belgium to the North Cape and back, spent three months emerging himself in the Irish culture, hiked across England, climbed numerous mountains in New England and visited many a handful of European cities. Besides writing and traveling, Bram spends his days reading, working out and trying to live a healthy life.